

Onion Tops

Number 74

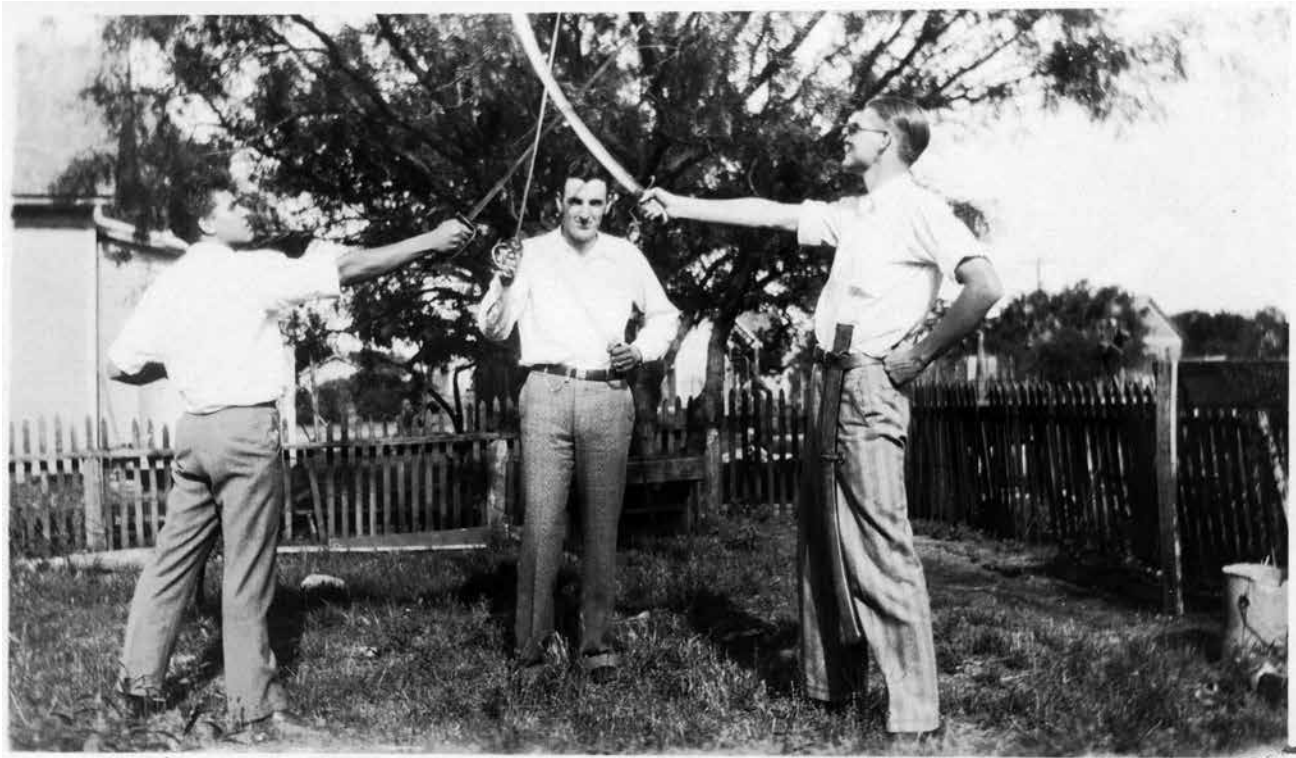

February 2018

Well, I'm still being the biggest sluggard in the group, but at least I found time to dig up something new. This here is a new-to-us photo of Robert E. Howard (far left), Lindsey Tyson (center), and Tevis Clyde Smith (far right). I don't know what occasion might call for swords and ties, but it looks somber. I'm in contact with the owner and will let you know if anything else shakes out, but for now, this is it.

[UPDATE: The Tyson family, from whom I learned of this photo's existence, has since donated it to Project Pride, the community organization that maintains the Robert E. Howard Museum in Cross Plains, Texas.]

This edition of Onion Tops, such as it is, was produced by Rob Roehm for REHupa mailing #269. All original material is copyright © 2018 Roehm's Room Press.

The curly hair and sword reminded me of the photo above. You can just see the picket fence in the photo below. If Clyde's pants weren't different, I'd almost think that these were taken at the same time. Hmm. Maybe they were.
